

Ballroom

Imagine an elegant Riverfront Hotel of the 1800's, its parlors bustling with wealthy cotton planters, merchants and politicians; its grand ballroom aglow in gaslights as it hosts the town's finest galas. Large French doors and graceful iron-laced balconies promise hospitality to travelers and townspeople. The St. James Hotel today is a superb example of meticulous restoration in a city known for historic attractions including the famous Edmund Winston Pettus Bridge, the Old Depot Museum, Sturdivant Hall, the Joseph T. Smitherman Historic and Civic Building, the historic homes of Selma's National Register Districts, and the National Voting Rights Trail and Museum.
